For the more rustic at heart we offer the impressive Scandinavian Scribe style of home. Massive round logs are draw-knifed to a clean surface, freeing them of bark and showing off their natural splendour. With careful consideration given to their original taper, they are stacked one on top of the other and scribed together for a perfect fit.

Usually customers agree with the rustic look idea when they get the price of a tight scribe. We usually level a fastening block on the stone wall and then place the hollow mantel over the fastening block, level, and then scribe to fit. We use a jig saw with a blade that cuts on the downstroke, as well as a rotozip.
